
TABLE OF CONTENTS.

N ^o		Page
1.	S HORT Review of former periodical writers. Design of the COUNTRY SPECTATOR.	5
2.	Critique on Egotism . C. S.'s account of himself.	13
3.	Enquiry into the simplicity of rural life.	21
4.	Difficulties peculiar to periodical writers. Three letters to the C. S.	29
5.	On Country News-Rooms . Two Political Creeds.	37
6.	The danger of rambling from home, in a letter from Querulous Moody .	45
7.	Autumnal scenery. Prospect of winter.	53
8.	Letters from three different characters on Country subjects.	61
9.	Letter from Querulous Moody continued.	69
10.	On Country Churches. Improper conduct in places of worship.	77
11.	The HEAD and the HEART ; an Allegory.	85
12.	Ænigmatical History of the Bible.	93
13.	On the Country imitation of London manners. Project for promoting fashion in the Country.	101
14.	Morning Calls in the Country recommended to Students in Law.	109
15.	History of a Tradesman, who became an Author.	117
16.	The mischiefs of fickleness illustrated in the History of a Country Curate.	125
17.	Situation of a periodical writer in the Country. Review of the C. S.'s Correspondents.	133

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

18. Querulous Moody's letter concluded.	141
19. On the method of distributing medicine in the Country.—Petition of the Cocks.	149
20. Domestic economy in the Country disturbed by London visitors.	157
21. Continuation of the History of the Country Curate	165
22. The present state of female improvement. Advantages enjoyed by Ladies in the Country.	173
23. The Thermometer of Popularity.	181
24. Difficulty of finding rural subjects. Two letters on Book-Societies in the Country	189
25. A benevolent subscription, popular in London , recommended in the Country.	197
26. The Revolutions in a Country Town.	205
27. Wilson and Mary ; a tale.	213
28. Conclusion of the History of the Country Curate.	221
29. Three letters. On pads . On Town Criers. On Country Banks.	229
30. On cheap education. The dignity of Tutors asserted.	237
31. On the use and importance of the words YES and No.	245
32. The paucity of those, who are qualified for rural life; an Allegory.	253
33. The C. S.'s farewell to his Readers. Retrospect of his undertaking.	261